Financial Services Innovation Coalition (FSIC) announces the addition of Co-Chair Music Entertainment Industry Powerhouse Drew Diamond to its Hip-Hop, Sports, and Entertainment Task Force

Washington, DC — The Financial Services Innovation Coalition (FSIC) is pleased to announce Drew Diamond as the new Co-Chair of its Hip-Hop, Sports, and Entertainment Task Force. Diamond's leadership and dedication to social justice and community empowerment make him an ideal fit for this role, and FSIC is excited to collaborate with him.

The Hip-Hop, Sports, and Entertainment Task Force, an ongoing initiative, brings together leaders from these influential industries to advocate for minority communities in the policy-making process. Under Diamond's co-leadership, the task force will continue to drive efforts in promoting inclusive and equitable policymaking at all levels of government.

FSIC looks forward to the impact that Diamond's leadership will have as the task force continues its mission to empower voices from the hip-hop, sports, and entertainment sectors.

Music and Entertainment Industry Titan Drew Diamond is a businessman who built a career in the music and entertainment industry. He worked with notable figures such as Whitney Houston and Michael Jackson, and his childhood friends Dame Dash, Omar Epps, Lil' Kim, and the late Notorious B.I.G. FSIC believes Drew will be a much-needed voice representing those that have none in the policy arena.
